

Woodland Owner Notes

The Extension Forestry program at NC State University Department of Forestry and Environmental Resources is launching its new email newsletter to woodland owners across the state. You are among the first to read, learn and respond to the newsletter that has a nod to the roots of Extension Forestry with its name.

Please share the newsletter and send us your suggestions for topics you would like to see in future editions. Please use the Ask an Expert email link to send your comments or questions.

Extension Forestry faculty from the Raleigh campus and county Extension offices are eager to know what is on your mind and how we can assist.

These newsletters are deliberately short and to the point. All of the topics listed can be opened for greater details by clicking on the titles. The links associated with the titles will open using the Internet browser on your computer or mobile device. There is a link at the bottom of this email message that allows you to "unsubscribe" from this email newsletter service. We take spam seriously and do not wish to add more clutter to your email inbox.

If you received this email as a forwarded message, and like what you see, please use this handy button to join the mailing list.

Seeing Forest Products in Forest Stands

Choose the free workshop in your area.

This is a free workshop for landowners and consultants who are interested in knowing how to recognize the forest products in their woodlands. The workshop is being held three times this spring in a different region of the state. The workshops begin with registration at 8:30 a.m. and officially start at 9 a.m. and end by 4:00 p.m. or earlier. Participants can bring their own lunch, snacks and drinks, or can order a simple lunch at the door for $15 (cash only please). Classroom sessions, equipment demonstrations and field tours are all included in the program. Advanced registration is required because seating is limited. Call our office for more details or use the website link.

March 30, 2017 - Wayne Community College, Goldsboro, NC

April 4, 2017 - Jordan Lake Educational State Forest, Chatham County, NC

Did you sell timber in 2016?

Your timber sale in 2016 has financial implications for federal, state and local taxes. Make sure you check the best sources for forest landowners at National Timber Tax Website.

Do you own a firewood business?

National Firewood Workshop
April 30, 2017 in Statesville, NC

The National Firewood Workshop is a one day event that offers educational and networking opportunities to the split firewood industry. It is sponsored by the Wood Education and Resource Center (WERC) of Princeton, WV and focuses on the firewood industry of the thirty-five states east of the Great Plains. The workshop's main focus is to offer ideas and discussions on how businesses can boost profits in the split firewood industry.
